Abstract

CeSMAP, the Study Center and Museum of Prehistoric Art, was established in 1964 in Pinerolo, Italy and it is one of the field's most important institutions in Europe and in the world.

Research led by CeSMAP has considered two different fields: the pre-historic spiritual sphere throughout the millennia, as expressed in rock art, and the evolution of pre- and protohistoric culture in the archaeological, climatic and environmental context of the European Western Alps.

The rock art missions of the CeSMAP cover all the continents and the international rock art collections of the Museum of Prehistoric Art of Pinerolo, Italy, are unique in the world in representing this phenomenon.

CeSMAP has been decorated with the EU-European Union Culture Award 1991 for its long scientific and cultural commitment.

CeSMAP is a founding member of the IFRAO, International Federation of Rock Art Organizations.

Paper dedicated to the memory of José Silva Gomes (1942 – 2012), dear Friend and eminent Scholar

Il CeSMAP racconta il sito archeologico di Göbekli Tepe a Tg Leonardo

Data pubblicazione 22 maggio 2013 by Patrizio Righero and saved under Cultura

8+1 0

A Urfa (l'antica Edessa, in Turchia) le rovine del tempio di Göbekli Tepe hanno attirato l'attenzione degli archeologi di tutto il mondo. La grande struttura megalitica circolare risale alla fine del Paleolitico, 12.000 anni fa, quando l'economia era ancora esclusivamente fondata sulla caccia. È il più antico tempio dell'umanità, collocato...

"Quando sento parlare di cultura metto mano alla Luger" – Sempre Partigiani.

Quella frase celebre e nefasta, "quando sento parlare di cultura metto mano alla pistola", fu attribuita a Göring ed a Goebbels, ma anche altri gerarchi nazisti la pronunciavano volentieri, visto che riassumeva così bene il loro mondo ideale. Recentemente un gerarca italico, anzi un ministro in carica, ebbe a dire: "con l' cultura non si mangia", anche lui esprimendo bene il suo mondo ideale.
